

British Soldiers at Bushy Run

In 1763, British soldiers marched through the Pennsylvania wilderness to help Fort Pitt. Many of these men then fought in the Battle of Bushy Run, which took place right here over 250 years ago.

British soldiers wore bright red coats and carried muskets as they traveled across the frontier. As you color, imagine what it was like to be a soldier on the long march to Bushy Run!